20th ANNUAL CONFERENCE ON VACCINE RESEARCH

APRIL 24-26, 2017 | BETHESDA, MD
REGISTER TODAY: www.nfid.org/acvr

CONFERENCE OVERVIEW

The 20th Annual Conference on Vaccine Research (ACVR) is the premier venue for high-quality current reports of scientific progress and best practices in vaccinology. The conference brings together healthcare professionals, researchers, public health experts, industry, and others from the diverse disciplines involved in research and development of vaccines and associated technologies for disease control through immunization.

The 2017 program includes an opening keynote address by Stanley A. Plotkin, MD, a keynote on the legacy of eradication through vaccines by William H. Foege, MD, MPH, and sessions on the world's first dengue vaccine, therapeutic vaccines, the use of novel technologies to fight emerging infectious diseases, and more. In addition, ACVR features:

- Poster presentations
- Meet the Experts Breakfast Roundtables
- Robert Austrian Memorial Lecture
- Dr. Charles Merieux Award for Achievement in Vaccinology and Immunology, and
- Maurice R. Hilleman Early-Stage Career Investigator Award
