Enjoy a student-led tour of our Danforth Campus and see firsthand the outstanding facilities enjoyed by our students. An optional information session will be offered after the tour, 11:15 a.m. – Noon.

Washington University is home to 7,791 undergraduates, 8,146 graduate students, and 3,645 instructional faculty from more than 100 countries. Our 169 acres, nestled in the heart of St. Louis, house top-of-the-line buildings, laboratories, classrooms, and libraries—all of which foster a sense of community, creativity, and collaboration.

WashU's undergraduate program is made up of five schools that span a variety of academic fields: The College of Arts & Sciences, Olin Business School, McKelvey School of Engineering, and the College of Architecture and College of Art—both housed within the Sam Fox School of Design & Visual Arts. Throughout these divisions, we offer more than 90 areas of study and 1,500 courses—allowing students the flexibility to explore multiple interests and passions.

On campus and across the world, you'll find talented, inspiring WashU students and faculty developing big ideas and pushing the boundaries on what it means to learn.

We hope you will choose to join us to meet members of our warm, supportive community and learn about the exciting research, teaching, and learning that happen here. If you are interested in attending, please go to https://pathway.wustl.edu/register/NAFSA\_2020 and complete the form.

A convenient way to get to campus is to take the Metrolink Light Rail System. Depart from the Convention Center Station and head westbound on the Blue Line (Shrewsbury/Lansdowne/I-44) train. Exit the train at the Skinker Station, cross over the tracks, and exit the station. An admissions staff member will be at the train station to direct you to the Summers Welcome Center.
