The University of Missouri-St. Louis would be honored to invite international educators attending the 2020 NAFSA Conference to join UMSL Global for a campus tour and discussion about the current status of higher education internationalization in the Midwest Region of the United States.

The University of Missouri-St. Louis is a land-grant, Tier 1 research university with a student population of 16,000, and 450 international degree-seeking students. Founded in 1963, UMSL is the largest public research university in Eastern Missouri and has been a game-changer for higher education in the St. Louis metropolitan area. Celebrating 50 years, UMSL Global is the international arm of the university and oversees all international activities on campus, from enrollment and alumni engagement to the internationalization of the curriculum, endowed professorships, and university and corporate partnerships.
