About DLAC Ignite

DLAC Ignite attracts educators and digital learning stakeholders from K–12 schools, districts, state agencies, non-profit organizations, and educational product and service companies, largely from the United States. The 2025 conference attracted almost 1500 on-site attendees, and the exhibit hall was sold out for the fourth year in a row. Attendance was driven largely by schools and districts sending a group to a previous DLAC and returning with even more people.

This conference is built around the idea that digital tools and resources alone don't magically transform education, but digital learning can increase student opportunities and improve student outcomes—especially when developed by thoughtful school leaders and implemented by effective teachers.

DLAC Ignite celebrates K–12 digital learning practitioners, researchers, and policymakers, offering them opportunities to learn from each other, share best practices, and share lessons learned in an innovative conference format. The program is built around short presentations, table talks, panel discussions, posters, and longer interactive workshops that prioritize sharing, networking, and discussion over long presentations.

Although attendees may be at various stages of using digital learning in online, blended, or hybrid environments, they share at least two common goals—to engage with ideas and methods they can use immediately to better serve their schools and students, and to explore the direction of the field in order to frame longer-term trajectories and strategies. DLAC Ignite is specifically designed to bring attendees into contact with the ideas, practices, products and services to help these goals be realized.

DLAC Ignite organizers and advisors

DLAC Ignite is organized by DLAC, the Community Advancing Digital Learning, with the support of a wide range of advisors. DLAC members include the most experienced people and organizations in the K–12 digital learning field, including a focus on online, blended, and hybrid environments. They include district leaders, directors of state virtual schools, principals of online schools and hybrid schools, teachers in a range of schools and classrooms, company directors, and managers of non-profit organizations.

Attendee profile

Based on past conference attendance, our projected attendee profile includes decision-makers from a variety of organizations who provide input on purchase decisions regarding digital tools, resources and content. Our February 2026 Sacramento Ignite sponsors and exhibitors can be found on our website. DLAC Ignite is designed for a wide range of attendees, including:

- Online/hybrid school educators (predominantly school/district leaders, but also teachers) seeking to share best practices and learn from one another
- Mainstream school educators seeking to start or develop system-level (school or district) digital learning programs and strategies
- Companies and non-profit organizations providing digital tools, resources, professional learning, and other support
- Researchers who work with educators to implement evidence-based improvements and enhancements
- State education agency personnel and other policymakers who seek to support digital learning in a range of schools

Forty-nine out of fifty states have been represented at one or more conferences to date, and international participation in DLAC Ignite continues to grow.

Valuing our sponsors

DLAC Ignite believes companies and non-profit organizations play a key role in supporting schools for the ultimate benefit of students. Few schools are implementing any type of digital learning without the help of one or more outside organizations providing content or support for teaching, courses, professional learning, strategic guidance, quality assurance, and technology platforms through their products and services. Third-party providers often play a key role in helping schools better understand best practices across the field.

DLAC Ignite demonstrates its understanding of the importance of these third-party partnerships with a design and structure that supports sponsors, including:

- The conference agenda includes two major receptions in the Exhibit Hall. No competing sessions are scheduled, and these events generate conversations with exhibiting sponsors
- DLAC Ignite makes it easy for sponsors to hold onsite events during the morning prior to the conference opening and in the evenings
- Extensive networking areas are available throughout the space so planned or spontaneous conversations can easily be conducted in convenient, comfortable, quiet areas.
- Sponsors are welcomed as session presenters and participants. (See guaranteed presentation opportunities for sponsors registered by June 8, 2026 on page 4)
- A variety of additional opportunities are available for sponsors, and ideas about other opportunities not yet considered are welcome
